Books

The Four Hour Workweek

The Four Hour Workweek is a book by author Tim Ferriss. Here, Tim discusses all of the different strategies and tricks you can use to reduce the amount of time you spend working – eventually down to no more than four hours a week! A lot of the tips in this book are aimed at the self-employed but actually anyone can benefit from the text and you should learn how to arrange a home-working set-up, while also reducing the time you spend answering emails (communication overhead) and even outsourcing some of your mundane tasks to other people like virtual assistants!

It's a great book that introduced the world to the idea of 'Lifestyle Design'.

Vagabonding

Vagabonding is a book by author Rolf Potts. This is the book that reportedly inspired Tim Ferriss in his own text and the idea behind it was to promote the aim of making travel the main goal in life. It explains how to 'take mini vacations' and to live with less so that you can enjoy a more fulfilling lifestyle. It's a great book and one that can open your eyes to different ways of living, even if you don't choose to travel as much!

How to Save an Hour Ever Day

How to Save an Hour Ever Day is another book, this time from author Michael Heppell. The central conceit is really very simple: you are going to save one hour, every day!

You do this by reducing the number of commitments you have, by reducing clutter (sounding familiar?) and by introducing numerous time-saving systems. When you do all that, the few minutes you save here and there can add up to a whole extra hour on the couch, with the kids or in the gym!

The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying Up

This is a book that took the world by storm and really changed the way many people think about tidying. It's gone from boring necessity, to a powerful tool that you can use to really transform your happiness!

The concept here is all about tidying so that you can make your home cleaner and more enjoyable to spend time in – and the tips that she uses are very brutal to the point that even the biggest hoarder and most untidy person should be able to see the transformation in their own homes!
